

U. S. RAILROAD LABOR BOARD WILL NOT PERMIT WAGE CUTS UNTIL THEY HAVE MADE RULING IN EACH CASE

CHICAGO, April 7.—Wages of common laborers on the railroads of the country must not be arbitrarily slashed, the United States Railroad Labor Board ruled today. Both sides of the controversy must come before the board and present their case and the ruling of the board given before a wage cut can become effective, it was declared.

The decision was made on the application of the New York Central, which asked permission to cut wages of common laborers 25%, retroactive to April 1st, without a hearing from the board. Then if the board the 25% wage cut was unjustifiable, the New York Central would pay for what they deducted from the men's pay.

Twenty-five other transportation lines, including Chicago railroads and the largest employers of labor in the country, agreed that if the New York Central was successful they would likewise make a reduction. The wages of common labor would have been cut from 45 to 48 cents an hour.

The board did not rule that the cut itself was unjustifiable, because of the reduction in the cost of living. Its ruling stated that it was authorized under the transportation act to cut wages only after both sides had an opportunity to present their case for a hearing.

BRITISH MINERS REFUSE TO PREVENT THE FLOODING OF HUGE COLLIERIES

By ED. L. KEEN,

LONDON, April 7.—Attempted negotiations for settlement of the British coal strike broke down completely today. Miners' leaders in conference with Lloyd George refused to meet the provisional demands of the colliery owners that steps be taken immediately to prevent flooding of the mines. The proposed mine owners' meeting was cancelled.

As a result, Britain's preparation for industrial warfare speeded up. Thousands of soldiers were rushed to strategic points. Great food supplies were collected. Lightless nights were proposed. It was known the owners refused demands for polling of their industry, but they were expected to make big concessions in wages.

The miners gave no indication that they would make concessions, but it was believed they would yield some points once a conference was begun. Industries immediately reacted to the set-back. Factory owners who had hoped to avert a shut-down, prepared to close their businesses. Further violence was expected in the Scottish and Welsh district. Everywhere there is encountered difficulty in attempting to prevent property from ruin.

POLICE ON HUNT FOR MRS. FAIRCHILD NAMED AS PRINCIPAL IN ELWELL CASE

NEW YORK, April 7.—New York police today started a search for the mysterious "Mrs. Fairchilds" named by Roy Harris, under arrest at Buffalo, as the woman who hired William Dunkin and himself to kill Joseph Elwell, the New York clubman. Before formerly charging Harris with the murder of Elwell, who was shot in his luxurious apartment in June, 1920, New York police want to cross examine him on his confession made to the Buffalo police. There is some discrepancy as to the time the shooting occurred. If the confession stands the test of the cross examination by the New York police, it is believed "Mrs. Fairchilds" will prove to be a fictitious name. There were many names brought into the investigation immediately following the murder and the police do not recall any "Mrs. Fairchilds."

WILLIAMS, PROPRIETOR OF ALLEGED "DEATH FARM" PLEADS HIS INNOCENCE

COURT HOUSE, COVINGTON, Ga., April 7.—"Before God I am innocent of the death of these men," John F. Williams, proprietor of the Jasper County "death farm," testified in his own defense today. Charged with having murdered Lindsey Peterson, Willy Preston and Harry Price, Williams made a strong denial of any knowledge as to the manner in which these men died. "As for the other eight men killed in Jasper County, I can explain that satisfactorily at the proper time," he said. In an unsworn statement to the jury he told of the visit of federal agents to his place and their investigation of the alleged peonage conditions. "They told me they could find nothing wrong, but that one of the boys carried a revolver."

GROUND HOG HUNTERS START ED FOREST FIRE

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 5.—Two large forest fires, covering about 400 acres each, were reported in the Gallitzin Fire District last week, according to the report of District Forester Walter D. Ludwig, to the Pennsylvania Department of Forests. One of these occurred in Beech Creek township, Clearfield county. It was caused by ground-hog hunters. It was caused by Jacob and Andrew Amrhein burning brush. Warden Charles Elmer Williams, Frank J. Schaaf, J. L. Miller, H. S. Riddle, assisted by John H. Winters, succeeded in getting this fire under control promptly with the help of a crew of about 100 men.

Welcome Stranger

DEPRECATES LACK OF VISION IN THE LEADERS OF MEN

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Labor unionists are learning today just as the stockholders of many corporations learned a decade ago, that some of their managers who display the greatest zeal for their immediate interests are not really their best friends," says the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr. "In the keen competition for business in years now long gone by, some of the railroad managers gave discriminatory rates favoring particular territory or customers who had a large amount of business to give. This increased business was an immediate benefit to the stockholders, and managers were given credit for shrewdness by stockholders who overlooked the fact that an injustice was being done and that in the end there must be a reaction from which the railroads would suffer."

The reaction came with its stringent legislation and administrative supervision curtailing the power of the railroad managers in the conduct of corporation business and restricting the charges transportation companies could impose. Along with an immense amount of good accomplished by railroad corporations in the development of new territory and the upbuilding of new industries, many evils were permitted to exist in the correction of which much harm resulted to the legitimate interests of the stockholders of railroads.

"Labor unions have served a useful purpose. If they can be conducted without imposing injustice upon others and infringing upon individual liberty and personal rights there is still a proper field for their operation. But certain leaders, intoxicated with the power they wielded during the recent administration and during the war emergency, are undertaking to set up autocratic dictatorship over various lines of enterprise and industry which are of vital importance to the nation as a whole. Unions were originally established for the purpose of conference and negotiation. Radical labor union leaders have attempted to make of them masters over production. Naturally since wages have been greatly increased, particularly in the last two or three years, many labor unionists are inclined to look with satisfaction upon the results and ignore the certain consequences of reaction from the indefensible methods and injustices practiced in the name of promotion of the interests of labor."

"Looking back over railroad and other corporation history, stockholders will not fail to realize that they have suffered from ill-advised managers more than they have from the utterances of those who picture the greed of corporations and combinations. The best friends of the corporations were those who endeavored to eliminate the evils and retain the advantages of the corporation method of financing large undertakings. A similar experience will be re-

CURWENSVILLE ROAD WILL NOT BE CLOSED UNTIL AFTER SUNDAY

The Progress was asked to state yesterday that the Curwensville-Clearfield State Road between Wright's and Hogback would be closed on Friday on account of the resumption of state road work. We were informed by County Superintendent of Road Westcott this morning that such is not the case and that the road between Clearfield and Curwensville will positively be open until Monday next. The road is in good shape, with the exception of a rough spot on two of the unimproved section and many motorists are taking advantage of the good weather to travel up that way.

The road between Clearfield and DuBois is already in fine shape and much work is being done on same. Travelers over the road yesterday report scrapers and drags at work almost the entire length of same.

A CORRECTION

Between the chap who wrote the Shapard advertisement for Dollar Day on Page Six of Section Two, which was me, and the fellow who read the proof, which was also me, and the fellow who made the correction, which was NOT me, the advertisement is pretty badly mixed up.

It should read like this: "Fashion Park Clothes for Young Men and the Hats should read: 'Croft & Knapp Hats for Men,' and then down in the middle panel the words '2 Pair' should be omitted. Then, Boys' Waists with Collars should read 'Boys' Waists with Neckbands.'"

We make this apology in justice to Mr. Shapard, so that there may be no misunderstanding.

corded in the history of labor unions. Unionism will suffer from the attacks of its enemies, but from the misguided management of its supposed friends. The reaction will result in either public disfavor or legislative restriction, or both, for the public as a whole will not long permit its interests to be sacrificed and its rights to be infringed upon in order that a few may promote their selfish desires."

FORD OWNERS TAKE GREAT INTEREST IN CLINIC AT GARAGE

The Fordson Tractor Clinic, given by the Williams Auto Sales Company at the Liberty Theatre and their Ford Sales and Service Station on Third street yesterday, was very well attended, despite the fact that the excellent weather kept many farmers, who would have liked to have been present, at home on the farm.

The clinic opened with a picture program, which showed the Fordson in the making and in operation. This feature was witnessed by the 180 tuition pupils in the High School, very many of whom are from farming districts. The merits of farming with a Fordson were pleasingly set out in the pictures shown.

From twelve to one o'clock an appetizing luncheon was served their patrons by the Williams people at their Ford Service Station. An interesting program was carried out in the afternoon at the service station. The first number was an address on "Power Farming," by County Farm Agent E. E. Fish, of Clarion county.

Local Farm Agent Sterrett then talked along the same lines and the Farm Agents presented convincing facts and figures as to the advantages to be derived from power farming.

The "Fordson on the Farm" was the topic assigned James A. McPherson, one of local Fordson owners. Mr. McPherson gave his actual experiences with the Fordson and convinced his hearers beyond question of the many advantages to be gained therefrom.

"The Fordson" was then discussed from every angle by William A. Wells, assistant manager of the Ford Motor Company. Mr. Wells gave an interesting and comprehensive talk on tractors, in which he pointed out the manifold advantages of the machine, the durability, ease and cheapness of operation, gave convincing figures on the mammoth strides power farming is making on the small farms of the country. President H. B. Powell, of the County National Bank, followed with a brief address and he was followed in turn by H. C. Casselberry, of the Ford Motor Company, and Mr. Harrall, of the Hooper Motor Company.

The clinic was a worthwhile meeting and demonstration and will prove of advantage to Clearfield county farmers.

ENFORCING PARKING ORDINANCE

The police department, by direction of Mayor Chase, has again begun the enforcement of the parking ordinance and warning notices are being posted throughout the areas covered by the provisions of the Traffic Ordinance.

The traffic rules provided in the ordinance are essentially necessary and their proper observance will work no hardship on any motorist while making the streets safe for all.

THIRTY-TWO CLEARFIELD MERCHANTS READY TO RESTORE PRE-WAR VALUE TO THE DOLLAR AT SALE TOMORROW

The stage is all set for the big day tomorrow and the weatherman says that it is going to be cloudy and cool. The cooler part of the forecast is fine, for you won't want it to be as hot as it is today for your Dollar Day shopping.

It is a question whether Clearfield has ever seen such values as are being offered in Dollar Day this year. Some of the offers are almost unbelievable and The Progress can vouch for the authenticity of them all. Some of the bigger values are held only in limited quantities and they may clean out early in the morning but as for the genuineness of the offers we're sure that you'll find them all that the merchants say they are.

There are several more merchants who have gone into the event since we published our story last evening and this makes the day all the more interesting.

The stores are all displaying the big window signs and it is in these stores that you'll find the biggest bargains. Look at the signs and then look inside for the savings that have been gotten ready for you.

These stores await your coming tomorrow:

WHO WAS THE LAD IN THE PRETTY CANOE SUNDAY EVENING?

What a charming picture the placid water of the Clearfield Boating Dam presented on Sunday evening as the crowds wandered up and down South Second street and Old Town Road and remarked how like a perfect looking glass it looked to the observers. On that smooth body of water was a single white canoe being paddled along by a young Lothario in white suit, lending eclat to the beautiful earth vision which would prove one of the greatest attractions our little city could have if that dam were covered with such canoes and a few motor boats and to cap it all a least one steamer with orchestra thereon to make the picturesque scene more perfect to both the eye and ear and for all ages and kinds. With the boating dam thus covered with a varied line of painted boats, Clearfield, as travellers would see the sight, would soon be advertised far and near as one of the prettier mountain resorts in the country. What recreation could be more healthful and enjoyable? None, we are certain.

LOOK OUT FOR FOREST FIRES

Forest fires were raging over in Medix Run section and in back of Home Camp yesterday, the Foresters and State Game Protectors having large crews of men in both neighborhoods fighting the flames. About four hundred acres were burned over in the Medix Run region before the fire was conquered.

The woods are dry as tinder and everybody traveling there should take every precaution against starting fires.

Leave no smoldering campfire and do not throw down lighted cigar or cigarette stubs.

CHAPTER XIII.

John Stuart Webster's agile brain was the repository of many conflicting emotions as he bathed, shaved, and changed from his soiled khaki field clothes to a suit of ducks before presenting himself before Dolores.

Had Billy's courage forsaken him at the last minute, with the result that he had gone back to the United States without having settled the question of Dolores' future? Had he proposed and been rejected, or had he proposed, been accepted, and had his plans for an immediate marriage vetoed by Dolores?

In either event, why had Billy failed to leave a note for him at the Hotel Mateo, or mailed him a letter to the Globo de Oro at San Miguel de Padua, advising him of the change in the plan of action outlined for him by Webster?

In the simplicity of his single-hearted devotion Webster was puzzled to understand how any woman in her right mind could fail to fall in love with Billy Geary. A man he was, from heels to hair, and a man with prospects far above the average. To Webster's way of thinking, the girl who married Billy might well count herself fortunate.

Dolores greeted him with unaffected pleasure. "Well, Caliph," she said. Just that. It made Webster sensible of a feeling of having returned to her after an absence of several years. "I'm so glad to see you, Miss Ruey," he replied, and added boldly, "particularly since I didn't expect to."

She knew what her reply would lead to; nevertheless, with that dissimulation which can only be practiced in perfection by a clever and beautiful woman, she answered with equal boldness: "Indeed! Pray why?"

"Well, for a pretty good reason, I think. A few weeks ago, after examining Billy's concession very thoroughly, I told him he was a potential millionaire. Now, while I disclaim any appearance of braquedocio, when John Stuart Webster, E. M., makes any mine owner a report like that, he is apt to be taken very seriously. And having made Billy a potential millionaire and arranged to give him three or four months' vacation back home, I had a notion he'd present to you a very valid reason why you should accompany him."

"You are very frank, Caliph."

"That's because I'm curious. He had a certain dream, and told me about it, and I did my little best to make it come true."

"I think I understand, Caliph. It would be very difficult, I think, for anybody to meet Billy without being attracted toward him. He's one of the dearest, most lovable boys in the world—and he did do me the signal honor of asking me to marry him. So there?"

"Well, and why didn't you?"

She smiled at his blunt insistence on forcing the issue. "For a number of excellent reasons, Caliph. In the first place he wanted me to marry him immediately—and I wasn't ready to leave Sublime, while Billy was. Indeed, it was highly necessary that he should have been married, for the sake of his health, and I had Billy's interest at heart sufficiently to insist upon it. You seem to forget that when a girl marries she must make some preparation for the event, and if she has any close relatives, such as a brother, for instance, she likes to have that relative present at the ceremony. You will recall, Caliph, that I have a brother and that you have promised to introduce me to him very shortly."

"By Judas, I never thought of that, Miss Ruey," the repentant Webster answered. "In fact, I wasn't thinking of anybody's interest in this matter but Billy's."

"Not even of mine, Caliph?" reproachfully.

"That goes without saying. Could I have done anything nicer for you than fix it for Billy so he would be in position to marry you? Here you are, practically alone in the world—at least you were when Billy met you and fell in love with you—and I know that boy so well I was convinced, after meeting you, that his future happiness and yours would best be conserved if you married him. I realize this is a most unusual conversation."

"Quite to be expected of an unusual man, Caliph. And I do not think you were one bit presumptuous. It was wonderfully dear of you, and I am profoundly grateful that Billy and I have such a true, unselfish friend, whose first thought is for our happiness. Of course, you realize how bad I felt to think I couldn't accede to Billy's plan. Billy's such a dear, it quite broke my heart to disappoint him, but a little temporary unhappiness will not ruin Billy, will it? It makes me feel blue to talk about it, Caliph."

"Not at all, not at all, Miss Ruey. Billy is one of the impulsive, whirlwind kind, up in the clouds today and down in the slough of despond tomorrow. He'll survive the shock. However, I'm glad to know everything will come out all right. Seeing you here gave me a momentary chill; thought a cog had slipped somewhere, so I helped myself to Cupid's license and asked. A man cannot learn very much from a woman unless he asks questions, can he? I mean on the subject of love."

She smiled a little, wistful, knowing smile. "No, Caliph," she answered seriously, "somehow the Master of Things ordained that on the subject of love man must do all the talking."

"Yes, but on the other hand, woman has the last word—as usual. However, the only thing in your case and Billy's that worries me is the thought that since Billy left his magnet behind he will be drawn back here before he is in the kind of shape, physically, that I want him to be in before he relieves me on the job so I can go away."

"Do not worry on that point, Caliph. I am your ally there; between us both I think we can manage him."

"Fine business! And with those few kind words we'll dismiss William until you care to talk about him again, although if you're as deep in love as Billy you'll not stay off the subject very long. Hope you haven't been into mischief."

"I haven't been idle. I've made several dresses for Mother Jenks and done a lot of fancy work and begun the study of my mother tongue. If my brother should become president of this country, it would ill become his sister not to be able to speak Spanish. By the way, Billy told me you were going to remain up in the hills quite a while yet. What brought you back to town so soon?"

"Expected I'd have some freight arriving shortly."

"How long will you remain in Buenaventura?"

Considering the fact that he was no longer subject to temptation, since the object of his temptation was now definitely promised to his friend, Billy, Webster suddenly decided to remain until the political atmosphere should be cleared, although prior to his conversation with Dolores he had cherished a definite plan to go back to the hills within 48 hours.

"I'm going back," he replied soberly, "after I have kept my promise and introduced you to your brother in the government palace. If I cannot introduce him to you there, the title to our mining concession will be clouded, in which event it will not be necessary for Billy or myself to fuss with it further."

He related to her the information gleaned from her brother two days previously.

"It's no use for an individual to fight a government despot in courts controlled by the latter," he concluded. "Your brother must win and depose the Sarros; then with the title to the property certified by the government as without a flaw, I may dare to spend $50,000 developing it."

"And if my brother doesn't win?"

"I may never have an opportunity to present you to him. We mustn't be squeamish about this matter, Miss Ruey. If Ricardo doesn't turn the trick, he may go the way of his father, unless he can manage to get out of the country."

She was silent, digesting this grim alternative. "As I understand it, then, Caliph, Ricardo hopes to win his revolution when he strikes the first blow."

"I think so. I dare say Ricardo hopes to take Sarros by surprise, bottle the city garrison up in the court and the government palace and

TELLS OF NEED FOR REVISION

Thomas Raeburn White Says Revision is Only Way to Remedy Evils.

Philadelphia.—The Peoples' Association of Pennsylvania, of which Franklin N. Brewer of this city, is president, has determined that the voters of Pennsylvania shall know all the reasons behind the demand for a revision of the constitution of the Commonwealth.

For that purpose the organization of the association is now being carried throughout the state so that when the voters begin to ask "why does the constitution need revision?" the answer will be before them. The opinions of the best minds of the state have been obtained and the arguments will be presented absolutely without partisan bias or influence.

Thomas Raeburn White, the eminent authority on constitutional law, said yesterday, "I am strongly in favor of calling a constitutional convention at this time."

"The Legislature needed certain limitations put upon it in 1874," Mr. White continued, "according to a widespread feeling at that time; and the constitution then adopted is bristling with restrictions on the Legislature. After a period of nearly forty years we find that the power of the Legislature is too greatly restricted and it cannot do things it ought under the present restrictions."

"The Legislature has been prevented from doing a lot of good things along with the bad things. It has been prevented from providing a proper budget system in the state; from abolishing certain useless offices; the condemnation of property and many other things."

"One reason why a convention is necessary is that the method of amending the constitution does not work. It is sometimes said that a convention is not needed because any amendment can be proposed, passed by the Legislature, approved by the people and you can remove restrictions in this way. As the commission has pointed out, there are a great many amendments which are needed. It will take almost endless time to get them through the Legislature and there is great difficulty about piecemeal amendments."

"Every amendment has to pass two successive Legislatures. In identical form and then be submitted to the people. Somewhere in this procedure it is usually possible for the opponents of the improvement to gather their political cohorts around them and move in solid phalanx upon Harrisburg, and the result is defeat."

"The result is that the method of amending the constitution does not work. It is sometimes said that a convention is not needed because any amendment can be proposed, passed by the Legislature, approved by the people and you can remove restrictions in this way. ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

"By Skinny"

We have often wondered why this was so high, when the farmer only received a nominal price for wheat he produced. We have finally learned from the farmer himself why this is so. He got his information from the local market books, where he found that grain speculators have been selling each year, just forty times the amount of grain actually produced annually in this country. The wheat producer are completing an organization at Chicago today which aims to not only control the production of wheat but its sale as well, eliminating the middle man speculator, with a view to not only giving the farmer a living price for his wheat, but supplying cheaper flour to the consumer.

This movement has behind it the farmers' organizations of thirty-three states whose aim is to banish the wheat speculator. May they succeed.

We see where Clara Hamon, ex-cused murderess, is going on the movie stage and as her press agent announces, "Bare all." If she does and comes here, an ordinance such as council turned down Monday night but with a different use limit, will be required to regulate the crowds.

These raisins sure are running true to form. "Raisin L" is doing its bit in these parts to make us forget our thirst and we note the name of the Rev. Max Raisin on the list of those patriots who are rising up in their thirteenth might to sweat the Eighteenth amendment clean out of the constitution.

Here is one innovation from the newly created state of Poland that we heartily concur in. Michael March was sent to the Polish district to represent a West Galicia district. When Mike got down there the "city boys" played horse with him and he failed to vote the way the folks back home expected and wanted him to. Mike came home the other day to report to his constituents. A committee of the same hastily got together, secured the luckless legislator, tied him to the town pump and proceeded to give him "what Paddy gave the drum," for voting against the judgment of his constituents. We sure are in favor of that proposition right here at home.

Over in Switzerland an old maid is a thing to be abhorred and when an old girl arrives around the forty-five mark without having captured a man, the neighbors sort of turn up their nose at her when she passes. A certain maiden lady named Krause felt this "disgrace" keenly and became so despondent over it that she thought the best way out of the difficulty was by "shuffling off this mortal coil." Being entirely too tender hearted to "knock herself in the head," she called in a couple of neighbors and told them her difficulty and desires. Any community appears to be glad to get rid of an old maid, so the neighbors agreed to take the grieving lady out to a nearby lake and drown her, the spinster paying them $1500 for the completed job. From the nature of things the money had to be paid over first. After getting the coin the paid executioners failed to execute and now the ancient one has brought suit to recover her own "blood money." Now isn't an old maid a queer bird?

We have heard of a lot of fellows who didn't think much of their wife's relations, but it remained for J. L. Ogden, a Chicago railroad man, to commercialize his lack of affection for the "whole dam family." The brother of Ogden's wife died recently at Omaha, Nebraska. The Ogden family attended the funeral, and following the ob-sequies, and before starting for home, Ogden filed a bill for $183.81, as compensation for himself and his wife attending the funeral. Among the items are $77.41 for railroad fare; wages for four days at $12.18 per day; meals totaling $18 and $8 for taxicab fare are included. We know a few fellows hereabouts who are not only willing to attend the funeral of any of their wife's relations but could be induced to pay all the funeral expenses if allowed to view the subject.

Miss Flora Swales entertained a number of her friends Tuesday evening in home of Messrs Elsie Reuter, of Cleveland Ohio, and Mrs. L. A. Thier, of Kansas.

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."

—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6521 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved Mrs. Haydock from an operation we cannot claim that all operations may be avoided by it, but many women have escaped operations by the timely use of this old-fashioned root and herb medicine.

WEBSTER —MAN'S MAN

with the port doctor to give her Trella a clean bill of health the very night she arrives. Hence the ship's authorities will not be suspicious, I hope, when we remove our men after dark and house them in Leber's warehouse, where they will spend the night unpacking those spades, picks and shovels of yours and getting the factory grease off them.

"At 4 o'clock in the morning various citizens of Sobrante, with rebellion in their hearts, will begin to mobilize at Leber's warehouse, where they will be issued rifles and ammunition and where they will wait until the action is opened to the south by the detachment from San Bruno, which, having marched from San Bruno the night before, will have arrived outside the city, and will be awaiting the signal from me. I will attack from the west—cautiously.

"Now, there are 5,000 government troops in the city and in various cantonments on the outskirts. These cantonments are to be rushed and set afire; I figure that the confusion of our sudden attack will create a riot—particularly when I do something that isn't very popular as a war feature down this way, and that is charge—and keep on coming.

"The government troops will start to fall back on the city, only to find themselves flanked by a fierce artillery fire from the San Bruno contingent; the troops from the arsenal, the guards at the palace and the Fifteenth regiment of infantry, now stationed at the Cuartel de Infanteria, next the government palace, will be dispatched post haste to repulse the attack, and 400 men, with the machine gun company waiting in Leber's warehouse, will promptly move upon them from the rear and capture the arsenal. There are a few thousand rifles and a lot of ammunition stored there; I miss my guess if, as soon as the news of its capture by the rebels spreads through the city (and I shall have men to spread it), I shall not have a few thousand volunteers eager to help overthrow Sarros.

"Once cut off from the arsenal and the palace, Sarros must fight his way out of the city in order to have the slightest chance to suppress the rebellion, for he will have no refuge in the city. And with the railroad and all the rolling stock in our hands, without a commissary for his troops, without a base of supplies, even should the government troops fight their way through, they leave the city in my hands and I'll recruit and arm my men and hunt them down like jack rabbits at my leisure. Once let the arsenal and the palace fall into my hands, once let me proclaim myself provisional president, once let the people know that Ricardo Ruey, the beloved, lives again in the person of his son, and I tell you, Webster, this country is saved. How do you like my plan of campaign?"

"It couldn't be any better if I had planned it myself. You might accept my suggestion and armor that little motor truck of mine. It arrived on yesterday's steamer."

"And some armor sheet steel with it—sheet steel already loop-bolted for the barrels of the two machine guns it will carry!" Dr. Pacheco cried joyously.

"Have you provided a chauffeur, Doctor?"

"I have—likewise an armored sheet-steel closet for him to sit in while chauffeur."

"How about that loan to the provisional government?" Ricardo demanded pointedly.

Webster did not hesitate. After all, what was money to him now? Billy had gone away, his hopes raised high, already a millionaire after the fashion of mining men, who are ever ready to count their chicks before they are hatched, provided only they see the eggs. Besides, there was Dolores. Full well Webster realized that Billy, tossed back once more into the jaws of the well-known wolf of poverty, would not have the courage upon his return to Sobrante to ask Dolores to share his poverty with him; should the revolution fail, Ricardo Ruey would be an outcast, a hunted man with a price on his head, and in no position to care for his sister, even should he survive long enough to know he had a sister. She would be alone in the world if he, John Stuart Webster, failed her now—more than ever she needed a man's strength and affection to help her navigate the tides of life, for life to a woman, alone and unprotected and dependent upon her labor for the bread she must eat, must contain, at best, a faint measure of terror and despair and loneliness. He pictured her through a grim professional of years of skulping and party sacrifices—and all because he, John Stuart Webster, had hesitated to lend a dreamer and an idealist a paltry $40,000 without security.

No, there was no alternative. If his friendship for Billy was worth a son, it was worth $10,000; if his silent, unrequited love for Dolores Ruey was worthy of her, no sacrifice on his part could be too great, provided it guaranteed her happiness.

"Ruined again," he sighed. "This is only another of those numerous occasions when the tail goes with the hide. How soon do you want the money?"

Ricardo Ruiz leaped forward and gazed very earnestly at John Stuart Webster. "Do you really trust me that much, my friend?" he asked feebly. "Remember, I am asking you for $40,000, no less."

Don't Value Yourself Too Low—

In buying Life Insurance many men value their true worth too low because they fear the premiums will prove to be a drain on their purse. Your life has a definite value in dollars and cents, measured by your income, your prospects, the responsibilities of your family. Let the Life Insurance man help you in determining your real worth, then insure your life for its full value. At the same time be sure you have a Savings Account to make it possible to Save regularly and surely to meet the premiums when they fall due.

Life seems short to every married man except the one who has to wait for his wife to change her dress.

There is still one woman who can make us love her whether she wears short skirts or not, and that's the lady on the American dollar.

THAT OLD FRIEND

Is there a man or woman in Clearfield with a friend of their family or a friend of their former years who has met with reverses and who, because of old age or inability to work, has had to go to an institution of public care? If so, why not take a moment every now and then to send a little sunshine into that heart by sending a paper, magazine, a post card, or, better still, a cheering letter?

It is a little thing for you to do, but think how much courage it would lend and how much help it would be to the one shut away from active, outside life. Just because your friend or acquaintance has failed in some particular is no reason why you should pull away from him. Hours and hours he thinks of the brighter days that have passed, and chances are he includes you in his thoughts. Help cheer him up. You will be a better man or a better woman for doing so, and you will find a big reflection in your own life from the light you have shed into his.

TELL US ABOUT IT

It's big news in New York when J. P. Morgan returns from a European trip, and the papers devote column after column to it. But it isn't of as much interest to Clearfield citizens as it is to read in their home paper than a former resident of the town is back here on a visit, or that you are preparing to pay a visit to someone in another section of the country. Home news holds first place in this community, and always will. That is why we want to impress upon you the necessity of helping to gather that home news, that your home paper may lay it before its readers. We want every personal item we can get. We want to know about all the visiting that is going on in the community, for every visit is of interest to someone besides the party making it. It takes but a second or two of your time to jot it down, or to keep it in mind and pass it to some one from this office when you meet them on the street. It may appear to be a small item in your estimation, and yet it may interest some faraway reader more than any other item in the paper. Remember this, and remember that as you help your home paper so it is going to help you by helping the whole community in which you live.

Early-Day Peddler.

An important merchant of centuries ago was the man who did your buying for you. In those days there were no mail-order houses nor was there such a thing as running into town to do your shopping. So there was evolved a professional shopper who made it his business to buy what you needed. He was known as a packer, packer, or pack-man, and from these words the modern names resembling them have sprung.

Calling in Cairo.

Englishmen who do not know Cairo sometimes make mistakes in its name and mispronounce parts of the city. In "Egypt as We Knew It" Mrs. E. L. Gifford amusingly describes how hard it is to find a person who has thus gone astray. Her husband, she says, wrote to a doctor for the address of some friends whom she knew he had attended. Here is the doctor's answer: "The M——s live in a house without a number in a street without a name next door to an Armenian butcher who, I think, has no sign, west of Abidin palace! The staircase has eighty-seven steps."

Derived Name From Occupation.

Hunting with a falcon was the chief sport of medieval England, and those who trained the birds or handled them were known as falconers, from which is derived our modern Faulkner with its variations.

THINKS THERE IS NONE BETTER

If you want a pure, wholesome and absolutely safe remedy for the relief of coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, get Foley's Honey and Tar. Moses Richardson, R. F. D. 1, Box 78, Ramer, Okla., writes: "I had a hurting in my chest and coughed until I gasped for breath. Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me of my trouble and did me so much good I don't think there is a better medicine for colds, coughs or hoarseness." Imitations and substitutes never do the work like the genuine Foley's.

* CARTER—SHAFFER

Albert B. Carter, of Clearfield, and Miss Vaughn Shaffer, of Mt. Joy, were united in marriage by Rev. C. C. Snively at the West Side M. E. parsonage at 10:30 yesterday morning.

After a trip to Western Pennsylvania and Ohio the happy couple will reside in Clearfield.

All patrons of the Junior Play notice curtain raises promptly at eight o'clock. Be there before.

Break Chest Colds With Red Peppers

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

When heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff, joints, relief comes at once.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub for colds, backache, sore muscles, stiff neck, lumbago, or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, you feel the tingling heat.

In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering so you can hardly get about, just get a jar of Bowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

TRY SULIHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble
Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even itching, itchy eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.
Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A simple dessert which may be given children is the following:

Blueberry Pudding.—The amount of bread used for this pudding depends upon the size of the family. Arrange layers of thinly sliced buttered bread in a shallow baking dish, pour over enough canned blueberries to cover. Place in a moderate oven and bake until thoroughly hot. Set away to cool and serve unrolled with cream and sugar.

Raisin Tapioca.—Soak one cupful of pearl tapioca overnight in cold water and cook in a double boiler in a quart of milk until soft. Remove from the fire and let cool slightly, stirring in three tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat two cupfuls of milk and stir into it three beaten eggs. Add to the warm tapioca. Stir in one cupful of sugar and one-half pound of seeded raisins with the grated yellow rind of one half a lemon and bake in a moderate oven for an hour, stirring occasionally until the consistency is even all through, then allowing to brown on top.

Apple Frappe With Maple Sauce.—
Pare without coring or paring eight good-sized, good-flavored apples. Sift through a colander when soft, pressing out the part nearest the skin as this is the best flavored. Add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, a few cloves and cook, stirring carefully to avoid burning, until the mixture boils. Cool and freeze. Serve in flaring glasses with a garnish of red jelly and the following:

Hot Maple Sauce.—Cook together two cupfuls of maple syrup with one cupful of cream until the soft-ball stage is reached. Remove from the fire, set aside in hot water and dip a spoonful over the top of each glass of frappe.

Cake and Cheese Dessert.—Break into small custard cups of glass enough bits of cake to half fill. Add a few raisins, moisten with fruit juice, cover with a layer of grated cheese to nearly fill the cups. Place in a steamer to melt the cheese. Serve with jelly and whipped cream over the top.

New Law Reduces Fire Losses

NEW JERSEY, the latest State to enact a fire prevention education law, is already feeling the salutary influence of this new study in the schools, although the law went into effect only six months ago. According to H. R. Heydon, Secretary of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, the law already has resulted in a reduction in the number of fires, although it requires only one hour of study each month.

"A new spirit is being shown in community neatness as a result of the lessons taught," says the New Jersey official. "For example, in one community where children had formerly scattered waste paper on the streets, the nuisance has been entirely eliminated through the teachings in the schoolrooms, that this constitutes a fire hazard. This move the local Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in the number of fires."

The new movement for teaching fire prevention in the schools of the other States is spreading rapidly, according to reports coming to the headquarters of the National Association of Credit Men, who are sponsoring the campaign.

From Governors, State Fire Marshals, Insurance Commissioners, Superintendents of Education and other State officials throughout the country letters have poured in reporting popular approval of measures similar to the New Jersey law.

The annual loss of 15,000 human lives and nearly $20,000,000 in property, largely due to carelessness, according to figures recently made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, has so impressed the country that the movement to reduce fire losses by teaching habits of carelessness has gained great momentum.

The 1920 legislation for a national fire prevention campaign, sponsored by Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, is in the schools of the United States.

Reisen Obtained From Dead.

The missing person, said to be an American soldier in a foreign land, has been found in a certain position of a traveling agent. It is said that the man, who was a well-known person with this world, was dead at the time of his discovery.

Remains of Pillar?

The remains of a pillar, said to be the remains of a pillar, were found in the ruins of a city. It is said that the pillar was a well-known person with this world, was dead at the time of his discovery.

On the Himalayas Creep?

Geological studies in the Himalayas and the Tibetan mountains seem to show an apparent creeping of these mountain ranges, sideways toward the south. Surveys may eventually disclose the real facts.

Synthetic's Cheaper.

"It's all right to sympathize with the under dog in a fight," remarked the observer on Keweenaw and Times. "But a fellow who'd be a fool to bet on him."

The "Green Mountain Boys"

The "Green Mountain Boys" was a name assumed by a body of soldiers from Vermont in the Revolutionary war. They captured Fort Ticonderoga at the battle of Bennington. They were organized originally by Ethan Allen to oppose the claims of New York to the territory of Vermont. The Green Mountain Boys were the first to ask that Vermont be regarded as a state. This was not granted until 1791, when Vermont was admitted as the fourteenth state.

Doctrine of Reincarnation.
The doctrine of a previous existence being made manifest to the individual is very old, and certain sects, especially in the Far East believe that man experiences many incarnations, carrying the memory to a greater or less degree from one incarnation to the other. Theological writers have taken up this strange state of feeling as an evidence that our mentality in this existence before our present bodily life—souls being created from the beginning.

Insects That Defy Winter.
In the dead wood of old snags are many insects that live through the winter regardless of how cold it gets; creatures whose weak bodies seem to defy the frigid temperature. Pull off a bit of old bark from a snag, and note that there is life beneath it; little people that try to scurry for cover when their home is wrecked. They are not so agile as when the weather is warm, but they are not in a state of torpor.

"JIM THE PENMAN."
First National.

A great deal of crook melodrama has come and gone, especially on the screen, since Sir Charles Young wrote "Jim the Penman," but that play of the born forger seems to have a certain perennial attractiveness about it, especially for amateurs. And for all the rugged invention and cleverness that have gone into the making of the long list of crook photoplays, it is superior to most of them. As to the acting, however, it is sketchy, hurried, skin deep, partly by reason of the scarcity of events, but that circumstance does not afford a blanket excuse for a seeming lack of ease and confidence. The exceptions are Lionel Barrymore and Anders Randolph, the former with a telling personality and a feeling for using it well before the camera. Barrymore is starred in the piece.

CONGRESS HEARS DRAMATIC PLEA FROM FILIPINO

Washington. — "Must the heart of America beat only for the freedom of Ireland, of Poland and of the Czechs - Slovaks, and not for the independence of the Philippine Islands?"

This was the question Resident Commissioner Isuro Gabaldon addressed directly to the membership of the House of Representatives in a speech which was given very close attention and was frequently applauded.

"At one time," said Commissioner Gabaldon, "Congress had before it no less than thirty resolutions expressing sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people, if not actually urging England to grant independence to Ireland. At that time, also, the Filipinos were knocking at your door. Out of the womb of war, many European republics were born, and America has refused to uphold the same. And yet the claim of the Filipinos is still unheeded. Must there be exceptions, then, in international justice?"

My plea, gentlemen of the American Congress, is that you ignore no longer the repeated requests of a deserving people for an independence that rightfully belongs to them. The granting of independence now affords the United States a golden opportunity to give to the world unanswerable proof of its sincerity, its consistency and its altruism. It will be the greatest example of square dealing in the history of the ages.

"Do not think we are not appreciative of all you have done for us. We are. America has truly created the Filipino people as no other nation has ever treated an alien race in all history. The high points of the American policy in the Philippines have been consistently inspired by altruism. We know that you were actuated in your labors by the desire to contribute to our own welfare.

"And we love you perhaps most of all for your solemn promise to grant us that which we hold dearer than life itself—our freedom. Independence is our national ideal. It is our all absorbing aim. It grows stronger every hour. For the spirit of nationalism never dies. Much less can it be subdued. We believe that we can never hope to be a sturdy nation if we are to rely forever on the magnanimity of the United States.

"America's task in the Philippine Islands is unfinished. What you have assumed as your sacred obligation in that part of the world has been fulfilled. A people with a medieval system of institutions has been transformed into a conscious nation, imbued with all that is modern in the activities of nations. And if you give us independence our gratitude to you will increase a thousand fold; it will last forever if you keep faith with us.

"There is but one issue in the Philippine question, and that is: Is there today a stable government on the islands? In the Jones law you promised independence upon the establishment of such a stable government. Your own Governor-General has officially reported that there is a stable government in existence today, and we also have submitted plenty of evidence to substantiate its existence. Therefore, we hope and expect America will now carry out its pledge."

CURWENSVILLE

Mrs. Charles Brown died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Westley Curry, at Stronach, Pike illness of several weeks' duration with typhoid fever. Her age was 13 years and one month. She had only been married a few months, her husband being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Brown, residing on South Side. Although affiliating with no particular church, she was a good Christian young woman nevertheless. Her funeral will be held on Friday. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Squire James B. Caldwell came over from Tyone on Tuesday evening and attended a session of Noble Lodge, F. and A. M., and also took in the "beats" at the close of the session.

Leotus Strickland has been appointed Mercantile Appraiser, vice Kartetter, resigned.

John Holden, an aged and respected citizen of Pike township, passed away at his farm home on Tuesday night, after an illness covering a period of several months. His death was caused by heart failure, although his advanced age, perhaps, hastened his end. He was the fourth son of William Holden, one of the early settlers in this section, coming into this end of Clearfield county from below Lock Haven at a point known to rivermen as "Holden's Bars." He settled on the Addleman farm and afterwards sold and purchased the old Leech farm a short distance below town, where the elder Holden died. It is said that the elder William Holden came from England and the date of his location here, "Squire Caldwell places at about 1840. John Holden was born probably in Clinton county, July 8, 1835, hence had he lived until July coming would have been 86 years of age. He was married to a lady by the name of Hile, who preceded him to the grave some years ago. Nearly the whole of his long and useful life was spent on the farm where he died. He was the last of the male line of the family of William Holden, one daughter Miss Kate Holden, who is well up in years, being the only member of that family yet living. The deceased was a thrifty man and attended strictly to his own affairs, a trait which gained for him many friends in his neighborhood. In politics he was a strong adherent to the faith and doctrines of the Republican party. Thus another old settler of the township has passed to his reward, leaving behind him a memory of toil and ofttimes pain and suffering.

The original company was made in June, 1886. John H. Mead was president, William Holden vice president, Verne Bloom now residing in DuBois) secretary, W. A. Moore treasurer, C. E. Patton financial secretary, trustees, A. E. Patton, J. S. Groff, D. S. Moore. Boyd A. Wortz was the first foreman. The membership roll contains the names of L. J. LaPorte, John Crouch, Joseph Crouch, J. W. Sykes, W. A. Moore, Mead Livingston, J. Rush Moore, J. Clyde Gates, Orvis Kerns, Ira D. Kerns, C. E. Patton, E. H. Draucker, Harry Kerns Wilbur Robison, Claude Bloom, John R. Fee, Frank S. Thompson, William Warfel, R. R. Stevenson. The company had no room for a meeting place, but when the weather permitted, met in the school house lot and transacted what little business came before them from time to time. The department today is one of the best equipped for fire fighting to be found in much larger towns than Curwensville.

Driggs Theatre THE PLAYHOUSE BEAUTIFUL

A Vitaphone Super-Special The Most Gorgeous Picture of the Year Starring CATHERINE CALVERT.

The Marvellous, Exciting Old Time Piratical Adventures of the old Spanish Main, Treasure Hunts, The Sunk- en Galleon, A Fascinating Love Story

"COMMON SENSE"

"COMMON SENSE," the picture featured at the Liberty Theatre tonight, is one that endears itself to an audience for several reasons.

To begin with, the cast headed by Viola Vale and Ralph Lewis, is far above the average. Helene Sullivan as the mother with a past, is not only very far to look upon, but she knows how to register emotion. William Austin, as the young biologist supplies the comedy element of the picture very commendably. Milton Brown, who has only a small part, does that little exceedingly well. Teddy Whack, the dog, without whom few scenes in "Common Sense" are complete, covers himself with glory. He is second to none of his peers in histrionic ability.

The plot contains a strong element of suspense and surprise and is entirely original providing a particularly acute angle of the eternal triangle. It is not a problem play. The scenes most of them out of doors, are a treat for the eye.

Preserving Milk

Milk is condensed by the evaporation of the water it contains. After it has been sterilized, sugar is added to some brands, and is not added to others, and the condensed milk is known as "evaporated" milk to distinguish it from the sweetened. Copper tanks holding 1000 gallons or more are used in the sterilization of the milk and the water is evaporated in huge vacuum pans.

SWAT THE FLY NOW! HE MUST NOT BE PERMITTED TO KILL OUR BABIES THIS SUMMER; KILL EVERY BIG ONE

An exceptionally vigorous campaign against the house fly will be waged this season by The Merchant's Association of New York through its Committee on Pollution and Sewerage, of which Edward Hatch, Jr., is Chairman.

Season Favorable for Flies.
The unusually mild winter presages a season that will be favorable to the development of the house fly swarms which are such active agents in the spread of disease germs. The winter "hang-over" flies have already made their appearance in considerable numbers.

The Deadly Easter Fly.
The Easter House Fly is more deadly than other flies. It is the progenitor of many billion swarms. To kill just one Easter fly means that there will be fewer billions to kill this summer. If you don't kill it now you are endangering the life of your babies and yourselves. The danger threatened by the germs of the new fangled diseases that may be brought by the thousands of immigrants now coming to our shore is a menace that demands our greatest vigilance, and the fly can be depended on to see that a widespread distribution of the germ is made when they arrive.

Reports collected from all parts of the country by Chairman Hatch last fall showed that the war against the house fly has been productive of noticeable results in decreasing the number of flies. The testimony of health officers in practically every part of the country was to the effect that the anti-fly crusade, which was started originally by Mr. Hatch's Committee, is bearing good fruit. It is the desire of The Merchants' Association that the ground gained shall not be lost through inactivity or overconfidence.

Danger from Europe.
The danger of importation of contagious disease from Europe makes it all the more necessary that no effort should be spared to keep the house fly under control. The fly is a busy and indiscriminating germ carrier and medical science places him in the same category with the malaria-bearing mosquito, the plague-carrying rat and the typhus carrying louse, classing him as an enemy of mankind, and putting him at the head of the list.

The campaign is of especial interest to hotels, boarding houses and restaurants. The largest and most influential of the women's organizations in the City are taking an interest in this branch of the work and will make inspections of places where food is served for public consumption.

tion, including the cheaper restaurants.

An Important Decision.
The Maine courts have decided that the owners of establishments which do not use vigilance in protecting food against flies are liable to their patrons. A decision in the case of Williams v. Sweet (Maine, 110 Atl. R. 316), is quoted in "The Journal of the American Medical Association," December 11, 1920, as follows:

"The Supreme Judicial Court of Maine, in granting the defendant a new trial after the plaintiff had recovered a verdict in this action to recover the price which the defendant had contracted to pay for certain rooms for two weeks, in the month of August, but which the defendant and his party had abandoned after four days, says that the crux of the case was found in answer to the inquiry: Was the defendant justified in leaving? It will be conceded that a hotel, when it holds itself out to the public as a place of resort for rooms and board, carries with such offer an implication that it will furnish its patrons with accommodations that are compatible with the standing of the hostelry, the prices paid, and the class of people invited to become its guests. These 'accommodations' include apartments, table, dining service, and especially such sanitary conditions as are calculated to render the surroundings inviting and wholesome rather than repulsive and deleterious to health. The complaint in this case was that at the table which the defendant and his party were accustomed to sit the flies were so numerous and became so obnoxious that their presence created an intolerable condition in violation of the obligation of the landlord to furnish suitable and sanitary dining facilities as implied in his contract. The real issue involved a single question of fact: Was the defendant justified in leaving the hotel on account of the fault of the plaintiff, in allowing flies to collect at the defendant's table in such numbers as to become insubstantial and repulsive? The court thinks that he was."

A Dangerous Disease Carrier.
"It is a matter of common knowledge that the common house fly has come to be regarded by the enlightened understanding, not only as one of the most annoying and repulsive of insects, but one of the most dangerous in its capacity to gather, carry and disseminate the germs of disease. He is the meanest of all scavengers. He delights in reveling in all kinds of filth, the greater the putrescence, the more to his taste. Of every vermin, he above all others is least able to prove an alibi when charged with having been in touch with every kind of corruption, and with having become contaminated with the germs thereof. After free indulgence in the cesspools of disease and filth, he then possesses the further obnoxious attribute of being most agile and persistent in ability to distribute the germs of almost every deadly form of contagion. It is a matter of common knowledge that yellow fever was formerly the scourge of certain localities in our own and other countries. For years no one mistrusted or was able to detect the cause. But one day it was announced that a certain kind of mosquito by its sting communicated the germs of this dread disease. The knowing introduction of one of these mosquitoes now would constitute a criminal offense. While the house fly has not yet been regarded as fatal as a mosquito, he, nevertheless, is now attracting the serious attention of sanitary and health departments all over the country; in fact, all over the world. The dangers with which his presence is fraught are also a matter of common knowledge, and hence of judicial notice. The court finds that the bibliographic list on this subject in the last twelve years embraces 136 publications in books and bulletins issued in many countries and printed in different languages."

Flies Chased Him.
"That the defendant left the plaintiff's hotel on account of the obnoxious presence of flies there can be no doubt, and the court thinks that he was justified in so doing. Accidentally, flies may invade any dining room, public or private but the presence of flies in a dining room regularly in numbers, however small, is a menace not to be encouraged or tolerated. A single fly may so contaminate a dangerous or even deadly disease like tuberculosis. To the person, therefore, who knows its dangers, flies about the food, in numbers however small, are at once repulsive, nauseating and dreaded. A single fly may be reeking with filth and covered with a million noxious germs. To those informed on the subject, this case presents a matter of importance and serious consideration. Reasonable conditions of sanitation are always to be measured by the fatality of the disease liable to be communicated as the result of the lack of such conditions."

Avoid Him.
Our idea of a cynic is a man with a grouch who loves to make others feel as mean as he does.—Boston Transcript.

400,000 IDLE FREIGHT CARS

Washington, April 6.—"According to latest reports there are nearly 400,000 idle freight cars in the United States. Assuming the average value of a freight car at $2,500, this represents a capital investment of one billion dollars in this single phase of railroad activity which is not earning a cent, but which is actually turning in a loss due to deterioration," declares the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr.

"The National Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations recently issued from its Chicago office a questionnaire to test the opinion of manufacturers respecting the railroad situation. Accompanying the questionnaire was a letter from the president of the conference, Mr. Butterworth, in which he said: 'Since the only real hope of a reduction in rates lies in the railways securing a reduction in their operating expenses they should have the support of every business man, every shipper and every consumer in the country in the effort they are making to reduce these expenses.'

"Commenting on the high freight rates and the inadequate net returns, Mr. Butterworth says:—'Here is the answer: Between 1917 and 1920 their total gross earnings increased from $4,000,000,000 to $6,200,000,000, or $2,200,000,000 a year. In the same year their operating expenses increased from $2,800,000,000 to $5,800,000,000, or $3,000,000,000 a year. The increase in expenses was about $1,000,000,000 greater than the increase in earnings.'

"The total wages paid in 1917 were about $1,700,000,000. The total wages paid in 1920 were almost $3,700,000,000, representing about two-thirds of such increase in expenses. The balance of such increase in expenses was due to the increase in the cost of materials and supplies. The advance in railway wages was granted by the United States Railroad Labor Board last July, so was in effect only eight months of 1920. After it was granted the wages of railway employees were running at the rate of almost $4,000,000,000 yearly, a sum approximately equal to their total gross earnings in 1917.'

"Another instance of the effect of Federal interference is cited as follows: 'There was an increase in the number of nine classes of shop employees between 1917 and 1920 of 141,000, or about 47 per cent. These employees in 1917 were paid $318,000,000 in wages, while after the United States Railroad Labor Board's wage award last July their wages were running approximately at $890,000,000 a year, an increase of $572,000,000, or 180 per cent. The railways are trying at present to get the board to set these agreements aside so as to decrease the labor cost and they are also trying to secure reductions in the wages of unskilled labor to the basis of the wages being paid for such labor by other industries.'

"The more one studies the railroad situation brought about by the deposed King of the Democrats and his prince of the Treasury and director of the railroads, the more it becomes impressed on the mind that they were seemingly engaged in the attempt to wreck the roads, drive them into the hands of the government permanently, and by outrageous padding of the payrolls to build up a voting class which would perpetuate the 'Wilson dynasty' in power. So far had they proceeded in that direction that the task of bringing the roads back to normal efficiency has assumed the proportions almost of a social revolution."

Make the old home young again

You don't have to tolerate unsightly walls in your home—falling plaster, shabby wallpaper and the like. You can so easily do over those rooms with Beaver Board that you shouldn't delay longer.

Beaver Board comes in clean panels. It is easily and quickly applied. There is no muss or litter in doing the job. It is adaptable to any room. It will improve the appearance of your home. And once your rooms are finished with this pure lumber product they will never need fixing again. Once Beaver Board is up it is always up. It can never crack or fall.

Look over the home and see what rooms need redecorating. Then phone us and we will show you how you can make the home young again without much trouble or worry.

CHARMING ADVANCE SUMMER STYLES FOR CHILDREN. STRAIGHT OUTLINE IS THE DECREE OF DAME FASHION FOR 1921

Charming are the summer styles for children as shown by advance models. This year's styles in children's garments show greater variety than ever before. Children's fashions, too, stick to straight lines, and are, more and more, built with the idea of correct design and coloring that characterizes the garments of their elders.

In New York, the Bush Terminal Sales Building was the scene, the other day, of a very complete showing of advance styles from the Infants', Children's and Juniors' Division, which is under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Gilman, a leading authority on children's wear. In the great co-operative Bush institution meet one thousand manufacturers who sell their lines direct to merchants and store buyers from all parts of the country, so that the styles shown here are very likely some of those that the reader will see in her favorite store in the near future.

Everything that baby needs was shown, for the Infants' and Children's Division has been instrumental in establishing no less than one hundred and seventeen infant departments in department stores. There were abdominal binders, teething bands, single and double breasted shirts, dresses, night slips, sleeping bags, cashmere sarong, rappers, bibs, caps, baby burrings, and coats. Creepers and rompers were among garments shown for the creeping stage. For the two-to-six age were shown ginghams, voiles, tissue voiles, batistes, swisses, elaborate little chiffon frocks, organdies, silks, taffetas, georgettes, and nets. Picoté frills often studded with French knots were the form of trimming frequently noted. Organdy combined with plain voile was another effective style. Smocking in pink and appearing below the yoke was very effective on a solid and sheer white organdy.

"This year, children's fashions are running more to the D. wraps and capes," said Mrs. Gilman. "Little coats are of utility materials, basket weave and polo cloth, some straight in line, and others with boxed plaits and stitched yoke effects. Bright reds are very much in vogue at the present time. Italian millan hats, shirky braid straws, also leghorns with two-toned facings are very popular types. Children's tailored hats are favored."

Mrs. Gilman has devoted years to the study of infants' departments and believes that, when efficiently conducted, they are the greatest aid to the mother and a big factor for the store.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union)

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people, and the old are hungrier for love than for bread.

The oil of Joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor with a Garment of Praise, it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

The following suggestions may be helpful in using up ham in various quantities:

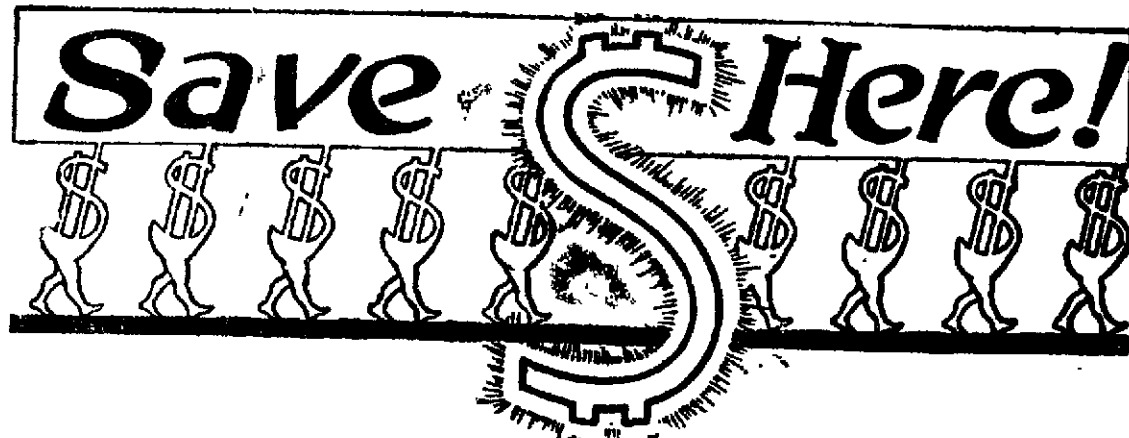

Ham Cakes.—To three cupfuls (more or less as to size of the family to serve) of hot mashed potato well seasoned add from one-half to one cupful of minced ham. Beat well and add a beaten egg. Form into flat round cakes and brown in bacon fat, ham or pork fat. Serve piping hot.

Ham Toast.—Butter rounds of baker's bread and spread half of them with minced ham which has been moistened with a little cream, milk or tomato sauce seasoned with a bit of mustard. Make into sandwiches and press together. Beat one egg slightly, add one or more cupfuls of milk, according to the number of sandwiches. Dip in this, allowing them to become well soaked. Brown in butter in a hot frying pan. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Apricot Charlotte.—Soak one-fourth pound of apricots in cold water to cover over night. Cook in the same water until soft, adding more water if needed. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-third of a cupful of cold water, add one-third of a cupful of boiling water, the juice of a lemon, one cupful of sugar and one cupful of the apricot put through a puree strainer. Cool and when the jelly begins to thicken beat until light, then add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and continue beating until the mixture holds its shape. Chill and serve with whipped cream.

Celery With Ham.—Parboil celery cut in one-inch pieces, drain and season with one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of minced ham, salt, pepper and one-half cupful of any good stock. When the celery is cooked tender add a yolk of an egg, a large spoonful of grated cheese. Serve on rounds of buttered toast and pour the sauce over it. Brown in the oven and serve hot.

THE GRANARY

A Column of News and Timely Topics for the Man Who Feeds the World

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
A SOUND is an air disturbance which reaches the ear and causes the sensation of hearing. A noise is a sound too brief or too irregular to have any assignable pitch. A tone is a sound continuing uniformly for an appreciable time and having a definite pitch. Thus music becomes organized noise.

When Apollo twanged his lyre, his method of tuning must have been as accurate as his instrument.

For hundreds of years before the advent of the acoustic engineer, makers of musical instruments were compelled to invent their own systems, often without a scientific basis, although in the seventh century B. C. Pythagoras invented the monochord to illustrate his theory of musical harmony as based on numbers.

The monochord is still used by acoustic engineers for experimenting upon mathematical relations of musical sounds. His device consisted of stretching a single string between two bridges, one or both of which were movable, which stand upon a graduated rule for the purpose of readily changing and measuring the length of the string when a certain pitch is reached by putting a weight on the end of the string.

The modern piano engineer will place a No. 17 gauge music wire on this monochord; adjust the bridge to a vibrating length of 26.04 inches; apply a weight of 160 pounds; pluck the string, and it will vibrate at the rate of 258.45 times per second, which will give "Middle C" on a piano tuned to concert pitch.

What was once the province of the piano maker, now devolves upon the wire manufacturer, whose product when put to the test, must be absolutely and positively uniform. The acoustic engineer was given a piece of iron ore and Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata and commanded to transform the ore into a medium for the expression of the composer's ideal in sense form.

The combined knowledge of the metallurgist, the chemist, the physicist, the acoustic engineer and the mechanic must be utilized in the solution of the problem.

It has become a source of wonder ever since Rudolph of Nuremberg drew the first wire in 1410 that a wire of a specified gage and uniform temper could be drawn.

So definite has become this science that even makers of popular price pianos can now duplicate with entire assurance the scales worked out by the acoustic engineer.

It is now conceded that the best pianos in the world are made in America of American wire, at a price which should place them in every rural and urban home.

The Biggest C. P. in the World

Clifford Thorne is the attorney of the American Fruit Bureau Federation. He speaks advisedly. He comments respect. At a meeting of the House agriculture committee recently, advocating legislation to eliminate speculation in grain futures at the end of a definite period (two years are suggested), Mr. Thorne asserted that more than 99 per cent of the trade in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade involved transactions in which no delivery of the actual grain was intended, that the yearly deals totaled 51 times the actual grain received and three times the world's yearly grain production.

"The Louisiana lottery in its palmiest days did about $60,000,000 a year business, while more than $150,000,000 is wagered on the Chicago Board of Trade. The commissions on the yearly business at Chicago are three times the receipts of the famous gambling casino at Monte Carlo," said Mr. Thorne.

Well, what are we going to do? About the first thing is to get busy. How? By joining some bonafide farmers' organization pledged to investigate the matter and take whatever summary and salutary action the facts may warrant. If the abuse of any system outweighs the use, the system must go.

THE GRAPE SPRAY SCHEDULE

The grape has a number of insect pests and plant diseases which materially reduce the crop unless controlled. All of the serious pests can be held in check by timely spraying according to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The more important diseases are anthracnose, black rot, downy mildew and powdery mildew; the more important insect pests are the rose chafer, grape berry moth, and grape root worm.

When pruning remove as far as possible all diseased canes containing anthracnose or other diseases or insect eggs.

1. Spray while the vines are dormant with commercial lime sulphur wash diluted 1 to 8 or 1.03 sp. gr. or 5 degrees Beaume. This is for anthracnose and some of the scale insects and need not be applied unless they are present. If the cottony maple scale or the European fruit lecanium are abundant, one of the oil sprays, such as Sealecine, may be used.

2. For black rot and the rose chafer spray when the new growth is 8 to 12 inches long. Use 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture, to every 50 gallons of which is added 1-1-2 lbs. of powdered arsenate of lead.

3. For black rot and the rose chafer make a second application just before the flower buds open, using the same materials as in No. 2.

4. For black rot, the adults of the grape vine root worm and other leaf eating insects, spray immediately after the blossoms fall, using the same materials as in No. 2.

5. Ten days or two weeks after No. 4, or just as the berries begin to touch, make a very thorough application of the Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead as in No. 2, driving it in among the berries. This is a very important application in the control of the grape berry moth, the adult of the root worm, and for black rot.

6. Ten days or two weeks after No. 5 repeat the application.

If two pounds of resin fish-oil soap are added to each 50 gallons of the Bordeaux mixture it will help to make the spray material stick longer.

FEWER FARMERS OF STATE ARE FEEDING STEERS THIS YEAR

Farmers of Pennsylvania, finding that steer feeding during the past year was largely an unprofitable investment, are not engaging in this branch of stock raising as extensively as a year ago. Reports received by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture indicate that only five per cent of the farmers are fattening steers this year as compared with nine per cent, or almost double the number of a year ago.

Lancaster county, as usual, leads in the list in the number of farmers who are feeding steers. Approximately 48 per cent of the farmers of Lancaster county are fattening steers at the present time, as compared with 57 per cent last year. Other leading counties in the feeding of steers are Dauphin, Adams, York, Franklin and Lehigh.

FATHERS OF MEN

"THERE is much truth in the old saying, 'As the twig is bent, so the tree inclines,' observed the retired merchant. 'If a boy inclined to crookedness grew up to be a straight and reliable man, it would be nothing short of a miracle. Therefore I tremble for the future of Spoonable's boy, William Henry. He seems to be just naturally vicious.'"

"You're full of excelsior," said the hotelkeeper pottily. "All those chestnutty old sayings are fakes. The patriarchs used to be always saying that the boy is the father of the man, but he isn't; and he isn't grandmother to the man, either. You can't study a boy and predict what sort of a man he's going to be, any more than the official forecaster can examine his maps and charts and tell us what the weather will be like tomorrow."

"You observe that my harbored eye is somewhat discolored and I have a contusion on my brow, and my nose is slightly out of alignment. Yesterday I was piloting along a back street on a little errand, when I beheld a big, husky teamster pounding the sawdust out of a venerable horse that had seen better days. I went up to him and protested in the most courteous way, and he said it would afford him genuine pleasure to kick my spine up through my hat, if I didn't go my way and leave him alone. I informed him that if he hit that horse again I would push his countenance out of place, and he immediately clubbed the suffering animal harder than ever."

"I am glad to say that I succeeded in kicking most of the rind off the teamster's shins before he got me down and sat on my head, but I submit that a man who will take such chances as I did must have the cause of cruelty to animals much at heart. There's nothing makes my blood boil quicker than to see an animal abused."

"Well, when I was a boy I had a wide reputation for cruelty. I used to delight in tying tin cans to the tails of dogs, and in drowning cats, and in robbing birds' nests, and all such sinful pastimes. The moralists of that period said that I was entitled to the name of Nero, and that I would come to a bad end. Yet when I became old enough to have some sense, I made pets of all the dumb cutters within eight miles."

"If that old maxim about the twig and the tree were any good, it ought to work both ways, and the saintly boy always would become a grand, good man. But as a rule the truly good boys don't amount to much in after life. Nearly all our useful citizens were hard citizens when they were boys, and the shiftless, no-account men were simply angelic when they went to school."

"A boy gets tired of being immaculate after he has tried it a few years, and he goes to the other extreme. And the boy who has been a horrible example ever since he left the cradle gets sick of that sort of thing when he has cut his wisdom teeth, and he becomes so virtuous that there's no living in the same block with him."

"Most of the old sayings are foolish and trifling, and I am surprised when a grown man goes around quoting them. Yet a lot of fellows think they have clinched an argument when they drag in a bewhiskered maxim in order to show that Spoonable's boy is foredoomed, you spring that old wheeze about the twig and the tree. You might just as well say that Mary had a little lamb, and consider the argument closed."

"I know you are suffering to remind me that people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones, but I won't stand for it."

Cure for Flat Feet.

Are you flat-footed? If you don't know, the next time you take a bath, observe the impressions that your wet feet make. If your feet are normal, there will be a narrow line from heel to toe on the outside; if they are flat, the entire bottom of the foot will show.

How can you cure flat-footedness? Buy a handful of marbles, place them in two rows, and start picking them up with your toes. To do this you must curl up your toes; as a result the muscles of the feet will be exercised and thereby strengthened—Popular Science Monthly.

And He Meant It, Too.

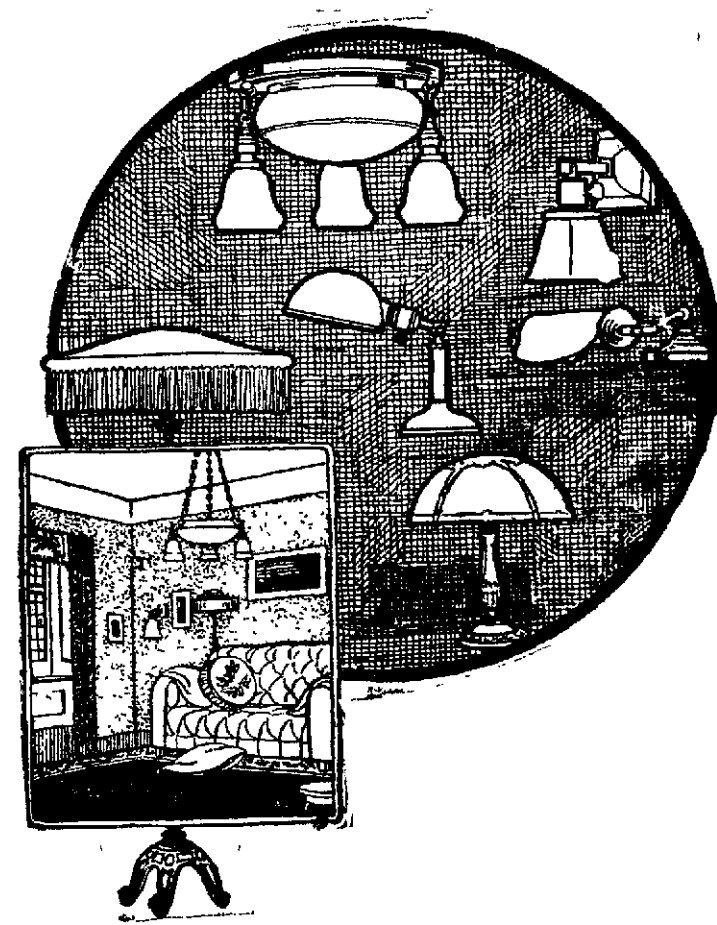

On Jimmie's return home from the birthday party of a girl in the neighborhood, he was telling his mother about her mother. When the children were leaving she said them all to wish her little girl something nice.

Whereupon Jimmie's mother said to him: "I trust that my little boy wished the little girl something nice."

"O, yes," said Jimmie, still seeing visions of cake and ice cream: "I wished her that she'd soon have another birthday."

Dog Loyalty.

That loyalty, burning bright and true to the last spark of life, that unfailing welcome on which a man can count more surely than on any human love—indeed, there is no secret in a man's love for a dog, however we may wonder at the dog's love for the man. —R. P. Utter in the Century Magazine.

Imparting the Truth.

There can be no doubt that the proper way of conveying to my understanding a truth of which I am ignorant, or of impressing upon me a firmer persuasion of a truth with which I am acquainted, is by an appeal to my reason.—William Godwin.

PRINTING FOR THESE OCCASIONS

Of course, the elite thing to do is to have your announcements for the great event engraved, but if you could see some of the stationery we have right here in stock, you'll hardly be able to tell them from the highest grade engraving.

We're more or less grouchy on the quality of this sort of work and it must not only suit us but it must suit you as well. When it suits both, we're both pleased.

You'll find the prices very reasonable, too.

THE PROGRESS JOB DEPARTMENT

Speaking of Undermuslins

UNDERMUSLINS change very little in style from year to year, but new features are introduced and they prove popular—gradually establishing themselves. The demand has swung away from substantial weighty fabrics to those that are light and half-transparent from all white to flesh color and pink from cottons to ward silk and there is a steadily growing appreciation of handwork in underthings. New ways of making garments and new kinds of garments have encroached on familiar styles and are taking their place. This is the case with bloomers and petticoats that have now become rivals of the petticoat and along with the growth of their popularity comes that of camisoles. Together they take the place of the chemise.

Bloomers find a ready sale. Their petticoats because they are shorter and very practical for wear with street clothes. They are made in the same materials as those used for making petticoats, including satin, rayon and organdy, weaves, silk, jersey cloth, satin and batist. In silks the color chosen for them is usually dull. They are simply made and easily adjusted without buttons and built holes. Shirtings over elastic cord or tape serve to hold them in place at the waist and below the knees. In white or pink batiste they are usually trimmed with a full of lace at the knees and occasionally a band of satin in a pale color is placed above the full with hemstitching joining the two materials. The very up-to-date young lady shown in the picture above is in adherent of the fashion for wearing bloomers under street clothes.

Camisoles have become important because of the vogue for short blouses and they are made of wash satin ribbons, lace or fine batiste and embroidered. The thin pink satin camisole leads all the rest but cannot always serve. A few dark ones are needed to be worn under dark colored but transparent waists with dark skirts.

Note the Wonderful Values Offered On

DOLLAR DAY

(Friday) At LEONARDSON'S

This sale promises to equal, if not outdo the good old Dollar Days of yore. We picked up a lot of bargains to include in it, at manufacturers' readjustment prices. Other merchandise taken from our regular stocks we re-marked at less than replacement costs. All kinds of things needed by women and in homes are featured.

Many of these offerings are priced at an even dollar, others cost more, but we'll make your dollars buy more than they have for years.

Unusual Values in

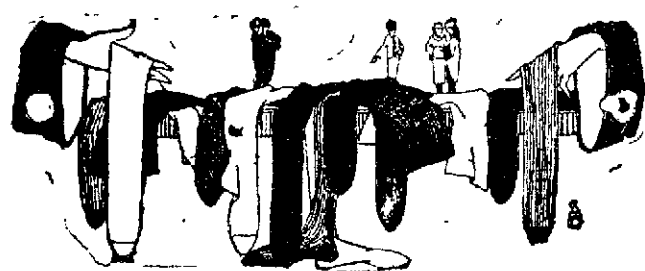

Coats
